One-line introduction — for a pitch or a media kit

WHEN SOMEONE ASKS "SO WHAT DO YOU DO?"

Ara Aranya is a Malaysian creator and commercial talent working in UGC, Canvas UGC, beauty and voice-over — an IT student and solo mother who builds ad-ready content from her own home studio in Kelantan, in Bahasa Melayu and English.

The long bio — for your website and press

ABOUT PAGE, MEDIA KIT, BRAND SUBMISSIONS

Ara Aranya is the public name of Nur Badzlina Razi, the creator behind Nova Badzlina Global.

She works across UGC, Canvas UGC, Tech UGC and Mom UGC, alongside beauty and canvas makeup content, KOL and KOC campaigns, voice acting, product photography and commercial talent work. Everything is written, filmed, performed and edited by her, in Bahasa Melayu and English, from her own home studio.

She is also an IT student and a solo mother, which is not a footnote to the work but the reason it lands: she makes content about products people actually live with, from a life she is actually living.

Her rarest offering is Canvas UGC — building a brand-new account from zero, posting to it daily for thirty days, and handing the whole channel over.

She is based in Kota Bharu, Kelantan, is in Kuala Lumpur regularly for university, and works remotely worldwide.

Logo, card & colours

The mark

A gold medallion holding your initials, ringed in rose gold. It reads at any size, works on light and dark, and survives being printed in one colour.

Business card

Standard 85.6 × 54 mm. Front is midnight with an orchid bloom; back is cream so people can write on it.

Becoming Ara Aranya

The canvas makeup transformation

Format: 60–75 seconds, vertical 9:16 · Sound: a slow build that lifts around 0:35 · Gear: phone on the Onsmo tripod, Hollyland Lark A1 clipped on, ring light at 45°.

TIME	WHAT YOU SHOOT	WHAT IS SAID OR SHOWN
0:00–0:05	Bare face, no makeup, looking straight down the lens. Do not smile.	On screen: "They knew me by the name my father gave me." No voice. Let it sit in silence.
0:05–0:12	Hands entering frame, picking up the first product. Close on the hands, not the face.	Voice: "I was named after a man who left. I carried it for twenty years."
0:12–0:25	Base and skin. Speed this up — 3× or 4×. Keep the audio underneath at normal speed.	Voice: "I carried a lot of things. Things that happened when I was small. Things that happened when I was grown. A diagnosis with letters I had to learn to say out loud."
0:25–0:35	Slow right down. Eyes only. One long unbroken shot of the liner going on.	On screen: "PDD. BPD." Voice: "Persistent depressive disorder. Borderline personality disorder. Not an excuse. Just a map of why some days cost me more than they cost you."
0:35–0:45	The lift. Colour arrives — blush, the pink, the shimmer. Match your cuts to the beat.	Voice: "And then I had a daughter. And I understood that she would learn what a woman is worth by watching what I accepted."
0:45–0:55	Lips last. Then a beat of stillness before you look up.	Voice: "So I chose my own name."
0:55–1:05	Look up. Full face. Smile only if it is real — if it is not, don't.	On screen, in gold script: Ara Aranya Voice: "Ara Aranya. A star that is a gift from Allah."
1:05–1:15	Hold. Slow push in, or just stay still.	On screen: "Scarred but sacred; a beautiful gift rising above the storm." Voice: "I am not healed. I am rising. There is a difference, and the difference is that rising is something you can do today."

Caption

My name is Nur Badzlina Razi. You can call me Ara Aranya — a star that is a gift from Allah.

I chose it myself, which is the first thing in a long time that has been entirely mine.

I live with PDD and BPD. I am an IT student. I am a solo mom. Some days I do all three badly and I still get up the next morning, because there is a little girl who is watching how I do it.

Scarred but sacred; a beautiful gift rising above the storm. 💜

If you are in the storm right now — I am not on the other side of it. I am in it with you, just facing a different way.

The two that follow

Post video one, then these within the same week. One introduces you; these two prove you are a person worth following rather than a single good post.

Video two — the POV

Format: 20–30 seconds · trending audio · minimal editing. This one is meant to be fast and cheap to make.

TIME	SHOT	TEXT ON SCREEN
0:00–0:04	You, sitting on the floor, tired, phone propped low.	"POV: you have a 9am class, a toddler with a fever, and a brain that is lying to you today."
0:04–0:10	Quick cuts: books, her shoes, your coffee, the mirror.	"You do it anyway."
0:10–0:18	Getting dressed, one-handed. Let it look real and unglamorous.	"Not because you are strong. Because she is watching."
0:18–0:26	You, ready, looking into the lens. Small nod.	"Rising is not a feeling. It is a decision you make before you feel like it."
0:26–0:30	Hold.	Ara Aranya · Scarred but sacred 💜

Video three — the real talk

Format: 45–60 seconds · one static shot, talking to camera · no music, or something very quiet underneath. This is the one that builds trust.

BEAT	WHAT YOU SAY	WHY IT WORKS
Hook	"Nobody tells you that the hardest part of BPD is not the feeling. It is the apologising afterwards."	Specific and true. Anyone who has it stops scrolling immediately.
Turn	"You feel something at ten out of ten. You act on it. And then it drains away and you are sitting in the wreckage of a mood that has already left the building."	Names the experience without self-pity.
Honesty	"I have lost people that way. Some of them deserved to go. Some of them did not, and I have to live with that."	Accountability is what separates this from a victim narrative.
Lift	"What is helping is not positivity. It is the gap. Learning to put ten seconds between the feeling and the doing. Ten seconds is not much. It is enough."	Gives the viewer one concrete, usable thing.
Close	"I am not better. I am building the gap. And if you are building it too — I see you."	Community, not guru.

Protect yourself while you post. Your divorce is live. Anything you publish can be screenshotted and used. Three rules that cost you nothing:

1. Never name or show your husband, your in-laws, or your father. Speak about what happened to you, never about who did it. Your story stays yours; their names stay out.
2. Post from scars, not open wounds. If it happened this week and you are still shaking, write it down privately and post it in a month. It will be better content and it will cost you less.
3. Decide once about your daughter — face shown, or never shown — and hold that line permanently. Changing your mind later does not un-publish anything.

Thirty days, built for a real life

Five posts a week, two days off. Every Sunday you batch-film the week ahead in one sitting, so on a bad day there is always something already in the folder. If you miss a day, skip it — do not try to catch up.

DAY	PILLAR	WHAT YOU POST
Day 1	IDENTITY	Becoming Ara Aranya — the transformation video from page 4
Day 2	REAL TALK	The POV video — a 9am class, a sick toddler, a lying brain
Day 3	CRAFT	Canvas makeup close-up: one eye, start to finish, no talking
Day 4	REAL TALK	The BPD "ten second gap" video from page 5
Day 5	BUSINESS	"What UGC actually is" — explain your job to your own audience
Day 8	MOM	Morning routine with a toddler, sped up, no narration
Day 9	CRAFT	Three lip products, one face, which one wins
Day 10	IDENTITY	"Why I chose the name Aranya" — 30 seconds, straight to camera
Day 11	TECH	An AI tool that actually helps a student — screen plus face
Day 12	BUSINESS	Your home studio tour — the ring light, the box, the mic
Day 15	REAL TALK	"Things people say to solo moms that they think are helpful"
Day 16	CRAFT	Canvas makeup: a full look to a trending sound
Day 17	MOM	What is in my bag when I bring her everywhere
Day 18	TECH	Editing a UGC video in under ten minutes — sped up
Day 19	IDENTITY	Answer your comments on camera — the first real one you got
Day 22	REAL TALK	"A day my brain won" — honest, no lesson at the end
Day 23	BUSINESS	Your first product photography set — before and after
Day 24	CRAFT	Recreate a look a follower asked for
Day 25	MOM	Studying at 1am — a real clip, no filter, no caption but the time
Day 26	BUSINESS	"How to book me" — point at your website and rate card
Day 29	IDENTITY	Thirty days as Ara Aranya — what changed, what did not
Day 30	REAL TALK	Read out the kindest message you received this month

The six pillars. Identity, Real talk, Craft, Mom, Tech, Business. Rotate them. Never post two Real talk videos back to back — it flattens both.

The one rule. Business posts only land once people trust you. Five parts story to one part selling, for the first ninety days. Then you can shift it.
